Four Pirates Earn Capital One/CoSIDA Academic All-America Soccer Honors

Posted: Nov 28, 2012

SAVANNAH, Ga. - Armstrong Atlantic State University senior forward Kristina Pascutti, senior defender Emily Cattanach, junior midfielder Andye Dawson and sophomore Maggie Carson have each earned Capital One/CoSIDA Academic All-America women's soccer honors, announced by CoSIDA on Wednesday afternoon. The four Academic All-Americans are the most for the Pirates in one season in program history.

Senior forward Kristina Pascutti repeats as a second-team Capital One/CoSIDA Academic All-American honoree from last season. The Lilburn, Ga., native carries a 3.78 GPA in biology and ranked second on the Pirates this season with nine goals, ranking among the Top 10 in the Peach Belt Conference. She finished her Armstrong career with 36 career goals, third-most in Pirate history, and she is only the second multiple Academic All-American honoree in Armstrong women's soccer history, joining Kristin Burton (2007-09).

Senior defender Emily Cattanach earns her first Academic All-American honor in 2012, earning a spot on the second team by carrying a 3.76 GPA in rehabilitation sciences. A first-team All-Peach Belt Conference defender this year, Cattanach led the Pirates and ranked third in the Peach Belt Conference in assists with 10. The Fort Myers, Fla, native has 18 career assists, ranking fifth on the Armstrong all-time chart.

Junior midfielder Andye Dawson earns her first Academic All-American honor, being named to the third team by carrying a 3.94 GPA in chemistry. The Senoia, Ga., native was an All-Peach Belt Conference midfielder in 2012, a PBC Player of the Week honoree this season and tallied five goals and three assists, with four of her five goals being game-winning goals.

Sophomore goalkeeper Maggie Carson earns her first Academic All-America honor, being named to the third team by carrying a perfect 4.00 GPA in political science. The Aurora, Ill., native was the PBC's Goalkeeper of the Week on September 17th and also was a PBC All-Academic team member in 2012.
